

BRIDE OF WEDNESDAY EVENING.

Society in Silhouette.

The return of the face veil for brides is one of the features of the bridal costumes this season to which several notable Washington brides have subscribed. Miss Beatrice Clover wore a short veil over the face at her marriage yesterday, which was removed at the conclusion of the ceremony. The arrangement of her veil was severely simple, following a straight line across the brow, a line which would have been trying to a less youthful and less attractive face, but which was extremely becoming to yesterday's bride. In place of the wreath or coronet of orange blossoms this same bride wore a spray of these blossoms tucked coquettishly into her coiffure at the back of the neck. Miss Letta Montgomery at her wedding last week to Lieut. Thompson wore her veil in the simple, old-fashioned style in vogue when her mother and her aunt, Mrs. Edward Douglas White, were brides. One point fell over the face and the other fell in a long line to the end of the train. Miss Margaret Draper, when she became the bride of Prince Boncompagni, with whom she sailed yesterday for their home in Italy, wore the face veil until the end of the nuptial mass. A simple chaplet of orange blossoms, similar to the chaplet of lilies of the valley worn by the little girls of Italy on their first communion day, held the veil in place. The exquisite tiara of diamonds, which she wore the evening before the wedding at the dinner party given by her mother, was not in evidence on the bridal day.

Miss Deacon a Lovely Bride.

One of the most notable of the season's brides, Miss Edith Deacon, who was married on Wednesday to Mr. Henry G. Gray of New York, wore a gown as simple as were all the details of the ceremony. Miss Deacon, who is one of three sisters celebrated for their personal loveliness, was a charming picture in a gown of white tulle with a court train of satin. Her veil was sprayed with orange blossoms and she carried a sheaf of Easter lilies. The marriage took place at Rock Maple farm, the home at Hamilton, Mass., of the former Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. George von L. Meyer.

Gowns at McLean-Hill Wedding.

Beautiful gowns worn by beautiful women seemed to be the keynote at the McLean-Hill wedding reception on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Cone Johnson, who is one of the handsomest matrons in the official circle at Washington, wore a smart afternoon gown, a combination of Belgian blue and black tulle. The skirt was of black tulle with an overdraped skirt of blue tulle. The bodice was of black tulle with a deep pointed collar of Belgian blue chiffon. The puffed sleeves, which almost reached to the waist line in back, and either side of the front, where it joined the vest, were finished with black jet tassels. The upper portion of the sleeves, which were quite full, were piped with the blue, and gathered into close fitting blue chiffon cuffs trimmed with tiny buttons to the elbows, from which dropped black jet tassels. With this gown Mrs. Johnson wore a wide brimmed hat of black panne velvet with crown of sable fur.

Another handsome costume was a three-piece Burgundy velvet worn by Miss Carolyn Nash on the same occasion. The long, flaring coat, which reached within a couple of inches of the hem of the skirt, was double-breasted, fastening to the neck, with bell-shaped buttons of the same tone. With this she wore a white fox neck-piece. The skirt, which was quite full, was cut on simple, straight lines, and the bodice, which was made with a short peplum, was of chiffon of the same shade. The deep cuffs were of the velvet, and the cape collar of white satin was edged with the velvet. Her cloche-shaped hat was of the same shade of velvet trimmed with five ostrich rosettes, from the center of which peeped tiny pink rosebuds.

Miss Nash in Coral Faille.

On the same evening Miss Nash wore another becoming costume at the Chevy Chase Club, when she entertained at dinner in compliment to Miss Beatrice Clover, whose marriage to Maj. Thomas Holcomb, Jr., took place yesterday. This gown was of coral pink faille embroidered in silver and iridescent beads. The skirt was gathered to a full yoke cut in points reaching half way to the knees, and the bodice was of self-toned net with angel pointed sleeves. The girdle, which was quite narrow, was of cloth of silver fastened at the side of the front with a nosegay of pink roses with metallic leaves.

Miss Ohl in Orchid Voile.

Many lovely clothes were also in evidence at the Holcomb-Clover wedding yesterday, when Miss Joan Ohl wore a charming model of orchid voile fashioned over a foundation of tulle of the same shade. The plaited skirt was braided in the same shade in a design above the hem. From the shoulders reaching to the knees was a loosely belted smock effect, so much in vogue at present. The large pockets were braided and embroidered in beads of the same tone, beading also, trimming the narrow belt. The neck was finished with a deep collar of plaited white organza and a pink silk cord ending in drops of pink jade and silver. A stunning picture hat of tulle trimmed with ostrich plumes was the finishing touch to this costume.

Gowns at Fischer-Dulin Wedding.

Mrs. Edwin H. Tillman and Mrs. John Joy Edson presided at the table in the dining room at the reception following the marriage of Miss Beatrice Dulin and Lieut. Herman Edward Fischer, U. S. N., Wednesday evening. Mrs. Tillman wore a very handsome imported gown of heavy ivory tinted satin made en train, with the decollete corsage adorned with a bertha of rose-point and gold lace.

Mrs. Edson was in pearl gray satin. Steel passementerie and lace formed the trimming on the bodice. The skirt was perfectly plain, made with a graceful train. There was a large gathering of the younger element in society present at the wedding, among them many of the debutantes of last season.

Miss Marjory Heimbolt wore a charming gown of green tulle, a foundation of white satin. The bodice of silver lace had a broad girdle, made in stripe effect of green tulle and cloth silver with straps of silver lace over the shoulders. The skirt had a panel of silver lace down the front with narrower panels at either side embroidered in American beauty and green iridescents in a rose design with foliage. A band of green tulle bordered the skirt.

Misses Suzanne and Elizabeth Chalmers were dressed alike in becoming gowns of black tulle, made very bouffant. The bodices were formed almost entirely of jet panels of the jet showed on the full tulle skirts.

Miss Margaret Douglas, who was also present at the wedding, was in rose pink, a particularly becoming color to her. The gown was made in the prevailing style, a tight, close-fitting bodice of the silk with silver straps over the shoulders and an overskirt of pink tulle caught up here and there on the skirt.

Miss Magruder in Smart Street Suit. Miss Natalie Magruder is wearing a stylish coat suit in a fairly dark shade of green broadcloth, the coat having the new straight lines in the front and semi-fitting back with stitching showing and collar and cuffs of mink. Smoked pearl buttons shading to green form the only trimming, while the skirt is perfectly plain.

With this costume she wears a hat of brown silk beaver with a moderate-sized brim and rather high crown trimmed with brown varnished ribbon.

Mrs. Dyer in Silver Lace. Mrs. Jesse F. Dyer was among those dining at the Army and Navy Club Thursday evening.

She wore a stunning evening gown of cloth of silver veiled in Nell rose tulle. The corsage was of the tulle over silver lace with a wide girdle of cloth of silver and bands of silver lace over the shoulders. The skirt had a very full drapery of the tulle mounted over ruffles of silver lace to give a pannier effect and caught up to show the wide ruffle of silver lace which formed the bottom of the skirt.

Army Notes. Mrs. Henry Lawton, widow of Gen. Lawton, who, with her daughter, Miss Katherine Lawton, has made her home at Washington for somewhat over a year past, has given to the National Museum in this city a most interesting collection belonging to Gen. Lawton, whose name is known throughout the service for his bravery and daring.

In this collection is a pair of Mexican shoes worn by Gen. Lawton while trailing the Apaches, a pair of swords used in the civil war, together with the medal of honor awarded him by Congress for leading a skirmish charge against a rifle pit at Atlanta. A third sword is a dress sword which has historic interest in connection with the Spanish-American war, and a flag of the 8th Army Corps which flew from above his Philippine headquarters.

Miss Katherine Lawton is convalescent from her recent severe illness. Col. Nathaniel McClure, recently detailed to duty at the War College, in this city, is at the Cairo with Mrs. McClure for the season.

Fine Weave KNIT UNDERWEAR

Follows the Lines and Curves of Your Body as Faithfully as Your Mirror Reflects Them

FOREST MILLS Underwear is so perfectly proportioned and accurately shaped for the slender, the medium, and the stout that every type of figure can be fitted "without a wrinkle."

This finest of underwear, exquisite in weave and texture, is perfectly tailored; yet gives with every movement of the body without a bind or draw, due to its skillful weaving and to the clever placing of the flat-lock seams to allow the right fullness over bust and hips.

The flat-lock seam is an innovation in knit underwear. The fabric is joined together without over-lapping, making the seam as dainty as the rest of the garment, and insuring that beautiful smoothness so necessary to comfort and to the fit of outer-garments.

Forest Mills Underwear may be had in every desirable style and weight, at prices to suit every purse. The band top finish—as used on the finest French undergarments, is a new feature on the low neck and no sleeve models.

Ask at your favorite store for the daintiest, most-delightful-to-wear undergarments they carry—then look for the FOREST MILLS label; better still, ask or write your store for Fabric 3180 if you prefer medium-weight cotton, Fabric 3398 for soft merino, and Fabric 3287 for lustrous silkateen and merino. Fabric 2030 will bring you misses' heavy-weight merino. These are only a few of the most wanted styles in Forest Mills undergarments. You may choose from filmiest gauze to heavy wool, as individual needs and fancy dictate, and in models specially designed for evening, as well as those for general wear.
